This additional compensation may present a conflict of interest because it creates an incentive to recommend products and services based upon compensation, rather than on your needs. Mr. Kibler will explain the costs associated with any recommendations they make and you are under no obligation to purchase any recommended products.

FCA and its CCO monitor the advice that Mr. Kibler gives by reviewing the relevant account opening documentation when the relationship is established and reviewing client correspondence periodically. In addition, account activity is reviewed periodically to ensure that trading is in line with your stated objectives. Factors that are considered include, but are not limited to the following: investment objectives, targeted allocation, current allocation, suitability, performance, number of trades, monthly distributions, concentrated positions, diversification, and outside holdings.
